How to Name Your Puppy

It is customary to register purebred dogs using the name of the kennel from which the puppy was purchased as the first part of the puppy's official American Kennel Club (AKC) registered name. In addition, some breeders employ a system of naming by theme so that littermates will be easily recognized as such when pedigree information is not furnished.

The theme for this litter is “Games.” Below are just a few names that could be used that correspond to this theme. You may use one of these, or your own imagination. When you come to pick up your puppy, please have your name picked so we can complete the registration process prior to the puppy going home.

Lots of people enjoy coming up with a registered name and then abstracting a “call name” from it. It's okay if you have already decided to call your puppy by a name that does not fit this theme.

Remember, before bringing your puppy home you will need to have decided upon a name so that we can complete the AKC registration paperwork together. It's a good idea to have a backup name selected as well in case someone else has decided to already use your first choice. First come, first served!
